HOW GRAND OLD MAN PLANNED RETURN TO ST. CLOUD

ROBERT E. McCRELLIS, JUST BEFORE DEATH, TOLD DAUGHTER HE WOULD BE BETTER IN FLORIDA'S SUNSHINE

Friends of the late Robert E. McCrellis, a report of whose death in Chevy Chase, Md., was published in The Tribune on September 22, will be interested in further details concerning Mr. McCrellis prior to his passing away, which occurred at 7 o'clock, September 14.

His daughter, Mrs. Faith McCrellis Kelley, says he was declining in health as he made the trip from St. Cloud last May. Mrs. Kelley's son, Robert, met him at the Baltimore station, when it was noticed that he had greatly changed, following a partial stroke. However, he began improving and by the middle of June was working about the yard, declaring that he felt the best he had in three years.

It was a fifteen-foot craft, built of the best materials, and the boys were all the more aggrieved because their grandfather could not have lived to enjoy a cruise with them on the boat's maiden voyage.

Mr. and Mrs. Kelley pleaded with their father to refrain from over-exercising, but he felt so sure of himself he kept very active and now, says Mrs. Kelley, "everywhere we look is something he planted, something he made for the children to play with, or some convenience he arranged for."

About the middle of August Mr. McCrellis began to talk about going back to Florida, and although the Kelleys wanted him to remain with them at their beautiful Chevy Chase home, Mr. McCrellis insisted that "down there I can get out every day, and here I would be afraid to go out in all kinds of sticky weather" and just before death hinted his noble career he was planning upon returning to St. Cloud.

"I did not oppose him," the daughter tells The Tribune in her splendid and touching report, "for I knew he was happier in planning for another winter with you and his beloved lakes than he would be if we insisted that he stay north."

As told also in The Tribune of September 22, the remains were taken to his old home, where services were held in the G. A. R. Memorial Hall in Hampton. Only a few of his comrades were able to attend the services, however, nearly all of them being too feeble; but those who could made the journey to the hall. It was filled with flowers. The burial day was one of a bright sun and soft breezes, and the old soldiers—the one time youthful comrades—presented a pathetic but admirable picture of fortitude as they tried to steady themselves and clear their voices to utter the last words for a departed friend. Taps sounded just outside the hall.

100 YEAR OLD DRESS

By Frances R. Riley
A light tap at my door one evening and my friend, Miss Loomis, came in making a very pretty courtesy, clad in a dress which was in her grandmother's wedding outfit in 1827. Her grandparents were missionaries in the Sandwich Islands in 1827. The goods were presented to her from the queen of the islands.

It was a very handsome gray silk, made with low neck and short sleeves, and long sleeves to be added when needed. The waist was made tight, with a point in front stiffened with stays; the skirt was long and full, and gathered with buckram in the pleats, and was sewed on the bottom of the waist.

She also had a visagretta, with smelling salts as in the olden days. She had come from the missionary meeting at the Baptist church, where she had given a little address telling of her grandparents going on a voyage of nine months as missionaries to Honolulu; also a parody on the "Old Oaken Bucket," using the pocket that hung in the dress instead of the old oaken bucket "that hung in the well."

I WILL NOT DIE

I can not die—my body must. For mortal frame is earthly dust; But in Christ's promises I trust, And life has said: "I will prepare for you a place." So, when I'm done this earthly race, I'll see my blessed Saviour's face; Therefore, I'm not afraid.

And when death comes, by day or night I will not die, but take my flight To realm of bliss where all is bright, And all is new. So, when I leave this earthly sphere To soar above where all is clear, I will not have the slightest fear— Christ's promises are true.

Then when I reach the mansion fair, I'll meet the loved ones who are there; Where sin or sorrow, pain or care, Or any blight, Can never touch my life again. Through Christ made free from every stain, A living soul I shall remain In God's eternal light. —W. Frank Kenney.

NINE OUT OF TEN CARS HEADED FLORIDAWARD

St. Cloud folks will long remember C. E. McQuade and his yellow hearse, especially because of the nag's traits for biting pedestrians when they approached too close its path, will be interested to learn that Mr. and Mrs. McQuade are now in Tacoma, Wash.ington state.

In a letter to Mr. L. H. Summers the McQuades advise that they made the trip to Tacoma in 21 days, suffering only four flat tires over the entire journey.

"Everything looks nice here," they said, "with fruit hanging ripe on the trees—apples, pears, grapes, and plums."

The couple reports the country is a great vegetable section and that these are raised in such abundance there is no sale for the products at home, hence they have to be shipped to other markets.

The letter states that Mr. and Mrs. McQuade had to drive through 18 inches of snow at one time.

With reference to Florida, the letter concludes: "Don't worry about Florida not having any tourists down there this winter, because nine out of ten cars we passed were going to Florida already."

SAVE THE EVENING OF NOVEMBER FIRST. WHERE? WHAT? MYSTERY!!!!!!

VISITED ST. CLOUD BUT NOW IS GONE FOR GOOD—AMEN!

In the language of the above headlines, S. W. Porter, pioneer business man, real estate and insurance operator, explains further, by saying: "And when he left he took his boys and his grandsons with him."

"I refer to Mr. Boom, the Hinder Boys and the Shoe-string boys," said Mr. Porter. "To bury this out, I sold the Hancock property on Pennsylvania avenue during the past week for cash."

"Now, the idea I want to bring out," he continued, "is that we are getting back to sound trading, and there never will be a time when you can get more value for your money in real estate than you can this coming winter. Now is the time to purchase a home or a lot to build on as there are many attractive bargains. I have some; in fact, all of our agents have some real good trades and the early buyers are the people who will make the best deals."

"I understand there was another property that changed hands this week on Minnesota avenue, through another agency. This shows there is already some activity in real estate, and it is still October—which is a little early."

The St. Cloud real estate agents can now show property with pride, Mr. Porter pointed out, since we have many paved streets, and homes with all modern improvements that can be had at a much lower figure than in the larger cities.

Mr. and Mrs. J. S. Turney who bought and sold considerable property in St. Cloud, purchased the Hancock property which Mr. Porter sold this week. It is well located and on a paved street. These people know value, he pointed out, and their acquisition of further holdings here at this time is highly significant. They already own large properties in St. Cloud.

"Having lived in St. Cloud since 1910," said Mr. Porter, "I can assure the stranger of the home-seeker that we have the real sunshine and climate which we 'throw in' and which is really worth half the purchase price that he pays for any property. It is therefore reasonable to assume from our continued improvements that there is no better city of its size to enjoy this sunshine and climate in the state than St. Cloud."

"With the additions to our schools, remodeling our churches, paving more and more streets, extending our water lines, our electric light lines and our numerous other progressive activities, together with the class of homes we are building, St. Cloud is bound to grow."

"Therefore, I say to those who have their eyes on Florida for a winter home—visit St. Cloud before buying; for our real estate agents will gladly show you our city and help in your mind now that this is the time to buy. Don't wait until next year."

Next year, Mr. Porter says, everyone will have awoken from their slumbers of today and natural demand will cause them to pay higher prices everywhere. You can't hold prices down to the figures that a great number of good bargains can be had at this time, he declared.

OH WHAT A PARADOX! BOOST ONE WAY AND SUICIDE ANOTHER

The Hometown, Pennsylvania, Citizen says the habit of recent years is largely responsible for the failure of many communities to make the progress which their natural advantages should make possible.

"The money ought to be kept at home for the expansion of local trade but industry is sent away to different cities, never to return. This habit of prosperity is permitted to slip away, through the indifference or thoughtlessness of the very persons who should set an example of local pride and loyalty."

"A triding saving here and there, usually more imaginary than real, is sufficient to which if performed would mean more in the direction of local prosperity than all the other boosting efforts put together."

"Why boost in one direction, while committing community suicide in another?" Join the St. Cloud home buyers and thereby certify to St. Cloud progress.

REDMEN COMING ON 27TH WITH BIG VAUDEVILLE

A cast of thirty Redmen workers will invade St. Cloud on Thursday, October 27, with a sensational vaudeville-illustrated "Vaudeville-Character Minstrels" under the direction of Mr. Henry B. Pfeffer.

The show will be given at the O. A. B. Hall, and the net proceeds will be turned over to orphaned children of the Improved Order of Redmen. The minstrel although arranged and produced under the personal direction of Mr. Pfeffer, will be given by Degree of Pionhontas and the Redmen, Pionhontas being the auxiliary branch of the order.

The show was recently staged in Orlando where it drew a large crowd and brought forth very favorable comment. The acts, jammed full of laugh and genuine amusement, will range from singing and toe-dancing to the "bone ring circus ponies"—but the ponies will be a bevy of beautiful Orlando girls, who act as a drawing card with their act.

The play will close with Indian war dances, songs and other characteristics of the aborigine tribes.

O. E. S. BANQUET

A delightful banquet was tendered to Mrs. Angie Mank, Grand Matron of the Grand Chapter of Florida, Order of Eastern Star, at the close of the Grand Matron's annual visit to Kissimmee last week. The Hotel Bostain was selected as the place for the banquet and a splendid evening was spent by all.

Mrs. A. P. Clark, of Kentucky avenue, Worthy Matron of the St. Cloud Chapter, together with a number of her members here, were in attendance at the Kissimmee gathering and entertainment.

Not rushing into St. Cloud, grabbing all the business to be had and out again.

Not by extravagant talk and over-statements forcing inferior merchandise on to you.

Not dodging taxes, civic responsibilities and all duties of citizenship.

Not a parasite. Not an insidious home town destructionist.

Such only is the peddler, the canvasser, the self-styled traveling representative, the field manager, who comes at any hour, rings your doorbell, takes your money—and once around the corner—is gone forever.

Compare that type with the St. Cloud merchants and business men named on this page.

St. Cloud business men are here 365 days a year to serve you at your convenience, to back up the merchandise they sell to you, to share taxes and civic responsibilities, to help make community life happier and more prosperous, to rejoice in your joys, to be neighborly, to sorrow with you when trouble comes—and to stand by you when in need.

The fortune of St. Cloud hinges absolutely on community loyalty from every one of its citizens.

"My town first"—Then, loyalty to its merchants and business men; its industries; its schools its churches; to community activities; to neighbors—and in so doing we will all be making progress in our jobs, our homes, our investments.

FLORIDA'S GREAT RECEPTION TO LINDBERGH AS TOLD BY ST. CLOUD'S REPRESENTATIVE

By G. C. HUNTER, Of Reception Committee

A silver wing gliding in a tropical sun, like the plume of one of the fabulous birds of history, came to waiting thousands their greatest thrill as Col. Charles Lindbergh drifted over the buildings which curve in like the sky line of Jacksonville.

Promptly at 1:45 p. m. the Spirit of St. Louis with which he braved the hazards of the Atlantic and wrote his name among the immortals of history swooped in from the west while waiting throngs in the streets below cheered the mightiest hero of the day, a spectacle that by this time is merely for him one of daily repetition. It has been written many times that Lindbergh flies alone. It might be added also that he flies on time, for exactly at 2 p. m. he brought the Spirit of St. Louis to a perfect three point landing at the Jacksonville airport. Immediately the plane was encircled by a temporary wire fence close enough to give all a view of the plane, yet protecting it from the whims of the souvenir hunter. The parade which had formed awaiting him started at once upon the colonel taking his seat upon the back of a touring car which enabled all the waiting populace to see the most talked of and the most written about character in the entire world. Just as the line of cars started to move, a heavy downpour began which tapered neither Lindbergh, or the crowds, either along the line of the parade or at the stadium where additional thousands were awaiting his appearance. Here he made a short address after which he was taken to the George Washington Hotel to await the banquet in the evening. His suite upon the twelfth floor had been especially beautified and everywhere in profusion were floral gifts, telegrams of congratulation and admiration, together with many letters and remembrances from a host of admirers. At this time he gave an interview to newspaper men after which he retired to rest until evening, a rest no doubt badly needed.

The banquet in the evening, attended by about 400 prominent citizens of the state of Florida was a fitting conclusion to the busiest day in Jacksonville's history. The banquet room as well as the entire hotel was most beautifully and artistically decorated, the owner of the hotel, Mr. Kleopell, an aviation enthusiast, taking especial pains to make the banquet a success. All were seated by 7 p. m. when the guest of honor in evening dress entered to the orchestral strains of America and the thunderous applause of the banqueters. He was seated under a lone eagle done in bronze with the Spirit of St. Louis in miniature, a gift from his aviation brethren in the Pensacola air station. Short speeches were made by Hon. John T. Alvey, Jr., Dr. A. H. Green and Col. Lindbergh. His talk was entirely upon the merits of commercial aviation and at no time did he mention a single word of his historic exploit. He stated that every city should have an airport, that four passengers and a pilot could ride in a modern plane at a total cost of four cents per mile, and that a proper designed plane under the care of a competent pilot was as safe as an automobile. He also stated that a modern plane was capable of more than 200,000 miles of flying.

Promptly at 9:15 Tuesday morning, at the exact hour set, he left the airport, with the cheers of thousands wishing him Godspeed, for Atlanta. With just a short run, about 200 feet, the Spirit of St. Louis took the air, and after drifting over the city for a last good-bye, he dipped the wings of silver in salute and with the smile that has won the hearts of millions was off for his reception at Atlanta, where by the way, he also arrived exactly on time.

To meet Col. Lindbergh is to learn to know a man, a man endowed with a sense of modesty almost unknown in this day of avarice and greed. He simply refused to permit himself to become spoiled the presidents and kings have decorated him with the highest honors they could confer and the royalty has done him homage. As has been written, "more of his simplicity and integrity of soul in other aviators of American life would help the country, bring it back to fundamentals of honor and righteousness, and invigorate faith in democracy."

His appearance breathes a new spirit of character, of honorable ambitions and achievements, of manhood and of principle, and of qualities that will forever hold him in the esteem of millions of fellow loving Americans who are proud to do him honor.

Personally the world has been kind to me that I have been permitted to see and meet him.

OCTOBER TO ENJOY $60,000 BANK DIVIDEND DISBURSEMENTS

(Continued from page One) tion from time to time, and making collections of other monies that may be due it by borrowers who negotiated the loans before the bank hit the rocks during the financial storm of 1926 which swept scores of other institutions throughout the country also from their bearings.

Before the Tribune went to press, the news of the disbursement to begin next Tuesday had been pretty thoroughly circulated in St. Cloud business quarters and was looked upon as a great aid to the generally improving business conditions that have been evident on every hand for the past few weeks.

Rev. and Mrs. Wm. Landis motored to Lakeland last week.

WESTSIDE GROCERY

F. J. Smith, Jr., of the West Side Grocery, located at the corner of Alabama avenue and Tenth street, reports a splendid business since he has opened for winter trade.

The store carries a full line of groceries and other goods to be had at a first class grocery establishment.

H. T. Coffield, of Tampa, was in charge of the local Wazovota Union office while I. E. Diebold was enjoying a week's vacation.

CHAMBER OF COMMERCE COMMITTEE FAILS TO SECURE PLEDGE FROM O'BRYAN TO DROP SUIT AGAINST BOND ISSUE

"Of course we could not give him an answer but told him we would report back to the St. Cloud Chamber of Commerce."

"And now, in making the report," said Mr. Hunter, "I am not prepared to recommend that you pay this amount, or any other sum for that matter." In this he was unanimously upheld from the floor.

The spokesman emphasized the fact that the Kissimmee people—members of the chamber of commerce there, of the Kiwanis club, and the county commissioners—were all almost solidly with us on the road project, and expressed his heart-felt thanks to the Kiwanis especially for their royal reception and entertainment of the St. Cloud committee.

Mr. Hunter then pointed out, by way of example, that in case the bonds at issue are defeated Osceola county may be called upon in the not far distant future to raise a large sum of money to pay for the Hickory Tree road and other minor work that the $150,000 bond issue was intended to take care of. It would be far better to have this money for 20 years, he said, than to have to raise such a large sum within the next year for a year, should the present already-validated issue be defeated.

The chair requested the committee to continue in its efforts to arrive at an understanding with the opponents and litigants, but Mr. Hunter begged to be excused, and his request was granted.

The other members of the committee will conduct further conversations with the Kissimmee Mayor in the hope that an amicable agreement yet may be reached.

ORLANDO P. T. A. MEET

The annual convention of the seventh district of Parents and Teachers' association was held in Orlando, Friday, October 14, 1927. It was well attended, delegates coming from the counties of Brevard, Lake, Orange, Osceola, Seminole and Volusia.

State President Mrs. F. A. Fanger, gave an address full of inspiration and helpful suggestions to carry on the work in this district. The address of welcome was given by Miss Eunice Delaney, president of the City Council, P. T. A. of Orlando.

Health co-operation with parents and teachers, was discussed in the morning by Dr. C. E. Duffin. He asked every parent present to support public health measures.

Reports from six counties showed a splendid growth in Parent-Teachers work, and contained much of help to the delegates.

LEGION FIGHT AT KISSIMMEE TONIGHT

The American Legion Post No. 10 of Kissimmee offers the fight fans of this section a neat program of boxing tonight at the arena of Ho-wa-ho springs.

Young Wallace, formerly of New Orleans, who is making his home in Orlando at the present time, will meet K. O. Bessley of Jacksonville. Wallace has proven to the fighting fans of this section his ability to give and take, and has always been a clean and fast fighter.

Both fighters weigh about 145 pounds and are in good shape for tonight's bout. Several preliminary bouts are staged, one of which will be Dandy Dick Waring of Kissimmee vs. Kid Gordon of Lakeland. The fight will be called at 8 o'clock at Cosh's Arena and a large crowd is expected.

59TH WEDDING ANNIVERSARY

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Russell of Delaware avenue, after enjoying their 59th wedding anniversary very quietly at home, on the 18th, responded to the ring of their door bell and were greeted by a coterie of neighbors, who at once took possession and requested the Russells with congratulatory words and other souvenirs, which were gratefully received.

After conversational speeches, wined and mired, the surprise party treated the aged couple with tea, cream and cake.

At an appropriate hour all departed they had enjoyed a splendid meal and took leave for their respective homes. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Coy, Mr. and Mrs. Heiber, Mr. and Mrs. Chamberlain, of New York, Mrs. Ernest and Mr. Hunt.

TOURING AGENCIES TURNING TRAVEL FROM FLORIDA

THOUSANDS OF OTHERS FEAR TO COME BACK TO STATE LEST THEY BE SERVED IN REALTY SUITS

JACKSONVILLE, Oct. 28.—Thousands of persons in the North who have not spent a winter in Florida since the boom are anxious to return to the state but will not do so because they are afraid to come within jurisdiction of the Florida courts. This unusual development, realized by few of the factors interested in the tourist business, was brought to light by H. H. Mass, president of the Florida State Hotel Association, at the conference at Jacksonville, October 23, called by the Florida state chamber of commerce to consider the regular winter tourist season.

Mr. Mass operates two hotels in Miami during the winter season and two in New York state during the summer. In the north he is in position to come in contact with thousands of persons financially able to take advantage of summer and winter vacations. Mr. Mass told the conference of more than one hundred transportation and hotel men, chamber of commerce executives and developers that if one person had so informed him this summer, three thousand had declared they would not come in Florida for fear they would be served with papers in suits seeking to collect payment for real estate they had contracted to purchase during the boom. Charles Young, hotel operator of St. Augustine who has been touring the north this summer made a similar report.

The consensus of opinion relative to prospects for the coming season, as gleaned from reports by transportation men and representatives of the hotels and chambers of commerce, was that the state could expect an increase of from ten to thirty per cent in the number of visitors as compared with last year. It was stressed, however, that Florida must not "lay down" on its work of seeking to induce tourists to come to the state if this increase is to be assured. Harry Thomason, of Jacksonville, secretary of the Florida State Hotel Association, citing reports from the state hotel commissioner relative to the number of hotel and apartment rooms available in Florida on December 31, 1928 and including the additional space made available by new construction during the first seven months of 1927, declared, however, that in order to do a capacity business the influx of tourists this season must be one hundred per cent greater than that of last season.

What he termed the greatest detriment to Florida's tourist business was cited by Mr. Young. The St. Augustine hotel man said that every one of the thousands of offices throughout the country of concerns similar to Cook's, which arranges tours, was turning business away from Florida. These concerns arrange tours for tourists and make their profit in the form of a percentage of the railroad or steamship fare which is paid by the transportation companies. Some years ago the southeastern railroads had this arrangement with the touring agencies but cancelled it. The western railroads still co-operate with the agencies with the result that they invariably suggest tours to California. Mr. Young stated that the tourist traffic to Europe, which has reached such enormous proportions during the last few years, is due solely to the affiliation of the trans-Atlantic steamship lines with the touring agencies. That the touring agencies are a highly important factor is attested, he said by the fact that St. Augustine is enjoying a constant increase in the tourist business through people who come to Florida on steamers of the Clyde Line. The Clyde Line has an agreement with the touring agencies which "grows" business its way because of the profit is in for themselves. It was brought out by Harold Cole, director of Public Relations for the Florida East Coast Railway, that the Southwestern lines had sought unsuccessfully to induce the western lines to discontinue their arrangement with the touring agencies and that the southern companies may, in the future, reconsider their determination not to participate in it themselves.

The utilization of Florida products at prices commensurate with home production and not higher than the same commodities bring in markets a thousand miles away was suggested by Paul O. Meredith, secretary of the Florida Association of Real Estate Boards. He declared it was a disgrace for tourists to seek to purchase orange juice in Florida and discover that the available supply was made from synthetic syrup manufactured in the north. David Shultz, of Daytona Beach, chairman of the conference, agreeing with Mr. Meredith as to orange juice, added that the situation concerning prices charged for home grown vegetables was something that might be investigated with profit.

Reports on the activities of the various interests directed toward stimulating the tourist movement to Florida was featured by that of W. M. Bird, superintendent of the Eastern and Central Districts for the Florida Motor Lines. Mr. Bird stated that the motor bus company, through its affiliation with similar concerns throughout the country, was seeking to arrange tours to the state and that it already had contracted for three tours from California this season with more in prospect.

DON MIKE IN "F. B. O." VERA REYNOLDS IN "CORPORAL KATE" AND "LADIES BEWARE" FEATURES

One of the features of "Don Mike," Fred Thomson's newest starring vehicle for F. B. O. which is showing at the Palm Theatre Saturday, is the ingenious ruses employed by Fred who plays the title role. As Don Mike, the son of a Spanish-Irish marriage, the star plays the part of the proprietor of a vast ranch at the time when California became the property of the United States. Under the Spanish rule there had been no question of ownership, but under the new regime some rascals had taken advantage of a change in the law and promptly annexed the immense holdings of the young Don. Alone he plans and executes his daring campaign which will restore his property to him, and the boldness and ingenuity of his ruses form a gripping story.

Presenting for the first time on the screen the women's side of the World War, or rather the intrepid part played by American women in the great conflict, Vera Reynolds' new star picture, "Corporal Kate," will be shown at the Palm Monday and Tuesday. From any angle, this is a decidedly human, realistic romance of love and war, undoubtedly one of the best produced in many months.

The story deals with a young man of wealth who is drawn into the war, and of two girls who go to the French front as entertainers. They do a sister dancing act at the cantons and both love the same man. Miss Reynolds and Julia Faye are the girls, while the man is Kenneth Thomson. There are many thrilling episodes as might be expected, and the action is packed with drama, pathos, thrills and laughter. The scenes on the fighting line are vividly pictured, and the dramatic moments, notably the German air raid, hold the spectator's interest on the keen edge of expectation to the final fade out. Indeed, the picture is quite worth while.

Miss Faye and Mr. Thomson, both of whom are featured, are admirable in their support of this picture star whose portrayal of "Corporal Kate" is perhaps the best thing she has done since her elevation to stardom. Mabel Coleman, the third of the three girl "buddies" is seen to fine advantage in an arduous role. The supporting cast is wholly adequate. The story, written by Zella Sears and Marion Orth, was superbly screened under the direction of Paul Sloane. You'll regret missing this splendid photoplay.

The frequently quoted theory that it takes a crook to catch a crook is absorbingly exemplified in FBO's starting mystery story "Ladies Beware" in which George O'Hara is featured, at the Palm Theatre Wednesday of next week.

In "Ladies Beware" a valuable gem belonging to a wealthy society leader attracts the attention, simultaneously, of two well-known crooks, both of whom, have by their cleverness, managed to retain their freedom from confining barred doors and windows. Though both are known to the police, they manage to outwit the latter and by their sheer daring gain the good graces of the owner of the gem.

When the gem disappears, and one, not knowing that another crook is present, seeks to regain it, ostensibly for his host but really for himself, the peculiar situation of crook matching cleverness with crook is introduced in to the story.

COMMISSIONER OWEN WILL TALK OVER WJAX OCT. 31

Frank H. Owen, commissioner of public utilities for the city of Jacksonville will make a talk over station WJAX in Jacksonville on the night of October 31st. The occasion for the talk is the fact that this date is "Electric Night" the forty eighth anniversary of the incandescent lamp. The General Electric Company, wishing to observe this anniversary, has leased the National Broadcasting Company's stations and all local stations for this hour and the forty minutes program will include a thirty five piece orchestra, a mixed quartette, a male quartette, and a chorus of sixteen voices. Prominent utility executives in every state will have a twenty minute talk on public utilities and what they are doing to further the cause of electricity in their respective communities. Mr. Owen is director of the electric plant at Jacksonville, is looked upon as one of the best informed men on electric plants in the southeastern states and his talk will be filled with interesting facts about the utility companies of Florida. The recent improvements and developments in public utilities in Florida read like a romance and not only will Florida people be interested in his talk over the radio but it will also interest the inhabitants of other states in the great story of development and progress. This is on WJAX on the night of October 31st at ten o'clock for the program of music and the talk of Mr. Owen on one of the world's most interesting subjects today—that of the electrical energy and power that is turning the wheels of progress in every state in the union and in this story the development of Florida is among the greatest of them all.

In Confidence

H. H. Has Love—But Little Cash

Dear Miss Flo—

I have been going with a wonderful girl for almost two years. While we have often talked of marriage, I have hesitated at an immediate wedding. Consequently, she believes that I do not love her—that I am playing with her. The fact of the matter is, I am not sure of myself. I am not sure that I can support a wife, because my salary is quite small. We have never talked over the financial end of the subject, so I don't support my sweet, heart has the slightest idea of how very small my salary is. I have tried several times to tell her, but somehow, my courage always fails me. I may be rather sentimental, but it seems to me the question of money should never enter into the question of love. Then, too, if she knows how darn small my salary is, I am afraid she will want to break-off. She has a very good position, and while I do not know just what her salary is, I do know that she always buys the best of everything. Therefore, I am quite sure that I could not support her and keep a home on my earnings. That is, I couldn't support her as well as she is supporting herself. When I tell her that we cannot get married for at least another year or two, she tells me that if I loved her, I wouldn't want to wait. I don't want to, but what's a fellow going to do?

Well, H. H., you do have your troubles, don't you? and of course, the only thing you can do is to talk things over with this wonderful girl. If she is as wonderful as you think, and we hope for your sake she is, she will understand, and perhaps if she likes her position, she will want to continue working after the wedding, in order to hasten the happy day. As for breaking off because of your small salary, if money means that much to her, it would be the wisest thing that could happen. You know, H. H., there is no telling what woman will do. You think she hasn't any idea of how small your salary is, but I have a hunch that if she has known you for two years, she knows a great deal more about your business affairs than you think she does. Naturally, she can't tell you about it. That's your job.

In the first place, there's a world of difference between two of your statements. Not being able to support a wife at all, and not being able to support her in the way she has been accustomed to, are two different things. If you are unable to support her, you would be nothing less than a cad to marry her. But if you are able to support her, even though it be on a small scale, I see no reason why you shouldn't marry her, telling her, of course, just how things stand. If she loves you, she may be willing to take a chance.

To a sentimental, romantic person, it may be rather a shock to be told that every girl should know the amount of her future husband's pay check. Common sense and self-interest demand that a couple talk in terms of dollars before marriage. It is a great deal better to talk money before marriage than to learn after marriage that you cannot keep up a home.

I am not advocating that a man should not marry until he can support a wife in luxury. In fact, I think a few bumps will do a lot toward bringing them closer together. It doesn't take a fortune for a couple to marry on. Marriage, however, does mean making a home, and making a home means a pay check sufficient to cover the necessities with a few dollars left over to save for "a rainy day." There should be a frank discussion of finances before a wedding date is thought of.

WONT LET THEM

BUSINESS HISTORY BEING MADE BY YOWELL-DREW

ORLANDO, Oct. 29.—This week some astonishing business history is being made in Central Florida, by the Yowell-Drew Company of Orlando, the largest retail business establishment in the central portion of the state.

N. P. Yowell, head of the organization, on a number of occasions has expressed his faith in Central Florida, and he has said that the business situation today is good. His statements have been met with all sorts of responses from whole-hearted agreement and expressions of optimism to absolute denial and walls of pessimism.

Mr. Yowell determined to prove his belief in the present business stability of Florida. The Yowell-Drew store was approaching the time of its thirty-third anniversary. Mr. Yowell decided he would stake the reputation of Central Florida's largest retail store, gained in a third of a century of business dealings with the public upon his faith in the present soundness of Florida.

The Yowell-Drew Company entered heartily into the support of the Building for a Greater Florida campaign. With newspaper display advertisements and by lending the services of sixteen attractive young women of the store organization to the cause, to distribute campaign emblems in Orlando, the company has done much to awaken a greater pride in Florida today and in its future.

Now, beginning on Thursday, October 20, the Yowell-Drew Company is setting out to demonstrate just what the actual business condition is in Central Florida. The company purposes to shutter all previous sales records, not only of its own store, but of all the retail businesses of Central Florida in a ten-day period. The company has set a quota of sales for its thirty-third anniversary sale that exceeds by 25 percent the total business done in any previous special sales effort.

To accomplish this astounding feat—in a presumably "off" season when very few people are in Florida aside from the state's permanent residents

—the Yowell-Drew Company from October 20 to the end of the month, is selling an enormous quantity of new quality merchandise at prices that are advertised to be "absolutely irrefutable."

One interesting feature of the sale is an anniversary candle in one of the store's display windows. This huge candle will be lighted toward the end of the sale. Every purchase during the sale entitles the purchaser to guess how many hours, minutes and seconds the candle will burn. To the person who makes the closest guess the Yowell-Drew Company will refund all the money that individual has spent with the store during the anniversary sale.

ANNUAL RED CROSS MEET

The annual meeting of the St. Cloud Chapter of the American Red Cross was held in the chamber of commerce rooms Thursday evening, October 13, at 8 o'clock. The treasurer presented a detailed report for the year. B. L. Riven, chairman of the disaster relief committee, reported a total of $228.64 collected and sent to the Mississippi Flood Relief, besides boxes of clothing.

Mrs. Grace Liggett reported that seven Christmas bags had been sent to headquarters. These bags were filled by various organizations, as follows: The W. R. C. Daughters of the Veterans, Methodist Ladies Aid, West-nabster Aid of the Presbyterian church and three bags from the local Red Cross Chapter.

The officers elected for the coming year were Mrs. C. A. Dawley, president; Mrs. Lucy Blackman, vice-president; Miss Kathleen Guff, secretary; Mrs. Grace Liggett, treasurer. The members of the Board of Directors elected were Mrs. H. F. Zetogor, Mr. Hine and Mr. A. J. Geiger.

A rising vote of thanks was tendered Mrs. Helen Ellis, the retiring president, for her faithful services through the past year.

The Government of Brittany has established an agricultural school for the farm girls of France, in which the girls are taught gardening, dairying, the care of poultry and pigs and the care of a dormitory and a dining room.

INTERNATIONAL SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

By KEITH L. BROOKS

(Managing Editor "The King's Business," Secretary Correspondence Courses of the Bible Institute of Los Angeles)

OCTOBER 23, 1927

THE CALL OF THE PROPHET

Lesson Text—1 Kings 19:19-20; Amos 7:14-15; Isa. 6:1-8

The lesson for today records briefly the calling of three prophets; namely, Elijah, Isaiah and Amos. It is of interest to notice that Elijah was called directly from the fields where he was plowing and Amos responded to the call when serving as a herdsman. Isaiah seems to have belonged to a family of some rank, and is said to have been a cousin of King Uzziah.

Elijah

Leaving Mt. Heron, Elijah (about whom we were last studying) again traversed the great desert and finally went into the Jordan valley. Going up the valley to the North, he came to a field where he saw Elijah plowing with twelve yoke of oxen.

For three and a half years, this was the first springtime that gave promise of a harvest. We may imagine the joyous toil of Elijah as he realized the prospect of raising something. Suddenly Elijah appeared. Apparently without saying a word, Elijah threw his prophet's mantle over the shoulders of this young farmer.

It was a well understood symbolical act. Good had evidently been doing with this farmer's heart, for he refused to acknowledge and showed no unwillingness to obey the call. The only asked permission to bid his family farewell. "Go and return," said Elijah, "for then knowest what I have done unto thee."

Elijah went back for a farewell feast, killing the yoke of oxen which he had been driving, as well, perhaps, to indicate his renunciation of his old calling. He then followed Elijah; called for home, friends and comfort, to endure hardships, suffer persecution and bear scorn.

He became, for several years, Elijah's servant. We have but one statement describing their relationship. "He poured water on the hands of Elijah" (2 Kings 3:13). The tie between the two became deep and strong, and Elijah's whole after life shows that he had deeply imbibed the teachings and spirit of the older prophet.

We could find no better example of one who had an ear for the call of God; who was ready to obey at all costs; who was willing to become for years a humble student, that in God's own time he might intelligently take up the prophetic office.

Amos

The call of Amos was somewhat similar. The lesson text informs us how Amosiah, high priest of calf worship at Bethel, alarmed at the stern predictions of Amos, carried to the king a distorted version of the words of Amos. The king apparently did not interfere, but Amosiah on his own authority ordered Amos to leave Bethel and go back to his herds at Tekoah. How ready wicked men are to get clear of God's reprovers and to say to them—"Keep your mouth shut about our sins and go on home."

These words brought out Amos' defense in which he tells us how he had been called into God's service. "I was no prophet," he replied, "neither a prophet's son; but I was a herdsman and a gatherer of sycamore fruit, and the Lord took me as I followed the flock and the Lord said unto me, Go, prophesy unto my people Israel" (Amos 7:14-15).

This was a calm refutation of Amosiah's insinuations. He was not prophesying from any unworthy motives. He was not simply giving vent to something he had learned in the school of the prophets. He spoke in simple obedience to the command of God, who had spoken to his heart while he was engaged in a humble occupation.

He had nothing to gain, either in profit or honor. He merely sought to do God's bidding, whatever it might cost him. How much Amos reminds us of the New Testament messengers, all of whom came from humble walks of life, and, except for Paul, none of whom were theologically trained. Giving up all to follow Christ, sitting at His feet, then carrying until ended with power from on high, they went forth to declare the whole counsel of God to all men, at the cost of terrible persecution and finally their lives.

Far be it from us to depreciate the need of an educated ministry today. We believe the world has lost many a good carpenter and blacksmith by their having become half-way preachers. On the other hand, there is no pulp it as vacant as the one that has in it a man with a stuffed head and no heart knowledge of Jesus Christ. As one has said: "Many a preacher is dying by degrees."

After all, the theology that takes hold of hearts, is the fruit of "knee-could answer: "Here am I send me" (v. 5). A soul cleansed from the love of sin and self, may go nimbly to God's work; outward discouragements and difficulties are then nothing.

Many have entered God's work who know nothing of the coal from His altar. They soon consume and die out. "The heavenly altar fire alone," says Leighton, "keeps in and returns to heaven where it was kindled." Let this, then, be sought by all who would do effective service for God.

Pith and Point

God calls for volunteers: He never drafts (Isa. 6:8).

He who has no vision has no power to carry out his commission.

The vision of the King will remove all thought of self-satisfaction and self-sufficiency (Isa. 6:5).

The best of men have seen themselves utterly vile when face to face with Infinite Holiness.

Lips purified by the fire of God are the only ones that can witness effectively for the truth of God.

God schools us in solitary places (1 Kings 19:19-20; Amos 7:14-15).

Many a man has taken out degrees in the schools of men, who has never learned the alphabet in the school of God.

Suggestive Questions

What was the glory that Isaiah saw? (Isa. 6:1-4).

Whose work is it to give us a vision of the Lord? (Acts 7:55-56; Jn. 10:14-15).

How does the effect of Peter's vision of Christ, compare with that of Isaiah's vision of the Lord? (Isa. 6:5; Luke 5:8).

What was the effect of John's vision of the Lord? (John 4:34).

What was the effect of the Apostle John's vision of Christ? (Rev. 1:17).

What looking-glass has God given us that will reveal to every man his own guilt? (Rom. 3:19).

What is suggested by the live coal that touched Isaiah's lips? (Isa. 6:7; Acts 2:3).

Also I heard the voice of the Lord saying, Whom shall I send, and who will go for us? Then said I, Here am I, send me (Isa. 6:8).

We heard of a preacher who once received a number of calls and was greatly perplexed as to which one he ought to accept. Finally he called to his hired man, an African Christian, and asked him what he thought. Without hesitation, the old colored man

WOMAN'S RELIEF CORPS

The L. L. Mitchell Woman's Relief Corps Auxiliary to the Grand Army of the Republic met in usual form on Thursday, October 13, with Mrs. Balcus, the president, in the chair. A good number were out in spite of the showers.

Chairman of Relief Mrs. Mary Brown reported 108 sick calls and $1.00 other than money, with 18 bouquets of flowers. Mrs. Brown asked for donations of clothing to make over for children.

If you have anything she could use let her know and she will gladly come after them. She is also asking for donations of jelly and other canned goods for the Children's Home at Jacksonville.

A vote was carried to see about having a bench picture show in the near future. A vote was also carried that all members donate a certain sum of money to replenish the treasury.

The birthday party of the Post and Corps is to be in the nature of a Halloween luncheon on the 29th, and all members of the Post and Corps having a birthday in the last months of September and October will be guests of honor.

Come all and have a good jolly time. Don't forget the date, Friday, the 29th after Post meeting.

Only Buick has an engine Vibrationless beyond belief

BUICK'S remarkable freedom from vibration is due primarily to three vitally important factors. First—the inherent smoothness of the Buick Valve-in-Head six-cylinder engine. Second—rubber engine mountings, front and rear. And third—the scientific and almost perfect balance of the entire Buick crankshaft assembly.

Only Buick enjoys these advantages. And only Buick provides the silken performance—the unvarying smoothness at all speeds—the longer life and greater serviceability of an engine vibrationless beyond belief.

NEWSPAPER CAMPAIGN IS STARTED IN NORTHERN STATES TO SELL FLORIDA ANEW

WIDELY KNOWN NEW YORK ADVERTISING EXPERT TELLS HOW JOSEPH W. YOUNG IS DIRECTING ATTENTION OF ALL TO THE STATE'S GREATER ADVANTAGES AT THIS TIME

By WM. H. RANKIN, President Wm. H. Rankin Company, New York Florida is coming back, and advertising in daily newspapers will be used immediately to let people know that conditions in Florida are better right now for those who wish a real outing and to enjoy Florida sunshine, Florida hotels at reasonable rates, and Florida sports of all kinds.

In all movements of this kind there must be a leader, and Mr. Joseph W. Young, head of the Joseph W. Young Properties, Hollywood, Florida, and Bay Harbor, is personally directing this campaign from his headquarters, New York City.

Florida took of itself a year ago. It found there were more legitimate and honest investments in the State, by far, than there were of the speculative. As the State stands today, it is in the same position as any other in the Union—people live there, work every day at their various vocations, own their homes, save, and invest the same as their brothers in other parts of the country.

Florida's greatest asset is her climate, and nothing that any one can say, or do, will be able to disturb that essential asset of the State. That one angle alone will always bring the investor to the State, and with the increasing road improvements, the widening of railroad improvements, and the general tendency of large manufacturers to locate branches of their industries in strategic parts of the State—there will be a greater influx of permanent residents.

The initial campaign will be in New York newspapers and the entire copy will be used to sell the twelve-day Florida tour. Mr. Young is placing his entire organization behind this initial campaign with a view of starting people to Florida earlier than usual this fall.

One of the very interesting parts of the campaign, and one that will be watched with great interest by other states, is the feature in all the advertising of selling Florida as a state first. The special excursion will include practically all of the northwestern part of Florida starting at Jacksonville, thence to St. Augustine, and then on down through the central part of the state.

The first stop in the interior will be at Hastings, the heart of the largest potato producing area in the country. Next, to Deland, the home of Stetson University; then Sanford, which is to enter what potatoes are to Hastings; next, Orlando, one of the largest cities in the central section of the state.

The tour goes on through numerous other cities and to Oklawaha City, next to the famous Connors Highway, which runs through a portion of the Everglades to West Palm Beach, and then to Hollywood, where a three-day stay is planned. The return trip is made up the East coast to Jacksonville, with the return to New York by boat.

The principal Florida hotels are already reporting a greater increase in reservations for the winter months by one-third, as compared with last year's bookings, particularly along the East and West coast.

So far this year, more than 600 reservations have been made at the Hollywood hotel, and all signs point to a genuine increase of interest in Florida. There will be no boom—all Florida agrees on that—but there will be an increased interest in Florida by Northerners who were frightened away by the old, frantic methods.

Newspapers receiving copy on this newest Florida newspaper campaign are: Brooklyn Eagle, New York Sun, New York Times, New York American, New York News, Jersey City Journal, Newark News, Newark Star Eagle, Passaic News, Peterson Press-Guardian, New Brunswick Home News and Trenton State Gazette & Times, with a total circulation of over 3,500,000.

METHODIST EPISCOPAL CHURCH - Ivor G. Hyndman, D. D., Minister - Our slogan is "A Friendly Church in a Friendly City."

Services will be held at the regular hours next Sunday. At the morning service the sermon topic will be "Poems." Mrs. Taylor will render a solo and the choir will render an anthem. Mr. Wm. Seabridge will be the soloist at the evening service. The sermon topic will be "The Jew."

The newly organized young people's class met for the first time last Sunday morning. The officers of the class are: president, Mr. Buford Knowles; secretary, Miss Beatrice Hooper; treasurer, Miss Pearl Hickman. All young people above high school age are cordially invited. Dr. Hyndman will take charge of the lesson period until a regular teacher has been selected.

While the parsonage is undergoing repairs the pastor and family will reside at the country home Brown's Chapel. The church office hours will be from 9 to 11:30 a. m. and 1:30 to 3 p. m.

The Ladies Aid will serve a children's dinner Tuesday November 1st.

BLACKSHEEP!

(Continued from Page Seven) fact. I'm thirty-four but I've loved only one woman. And strange as it may seem, she's a bishop's daughter." This confession made it incumbent upon Archie to make some sort of reply. The Governor would probably be disappointed in him if he confessed the meagerness of his experiences.

"Well, I'm in the same boat," he answered glibly. "There's only one girl for me!" This reference to Isabel Perry, remote and guarded as it was, he defended only on the ground that it was necessary in some way to meet the Governor half-way in his confidences. And it was no lie that he sincerely believed that he loved her. No other girl had ever roused him so much, or given him so good reason for standing off and taking a look at himself. He wondered what she would say if she could see him with a criminal beside him, joyriding in a stolen car.

His thoughts of her had led him far afield when the Governor remarked ruminatively:

"Do you manage to see her? That's the devil of it in my case! The lady's forbidden to recognize me in any way and her father is a tart old party and keeps sharp watch of her. I can't see her and the regular mails are closed to me. Nevertheless we have an arrangement by which if she ever needs me or thinks I can serve her in any way she's to have a note in a certain place. It's her own idea and very pretty."

As dawn broke the whistle and rattle of a train caused the Governor to slip the car and dive into his pockets for time tables of which he carried a large supply. He scanned one and hummed his satisfaction.

"We'll get rid of this machine right now as there's a station over there a little way where we can pick up a local flight into Portsmouth. He stopped, opened a gate and ran the car through a barnyard and into an empty shed.

"Now for a brisk walk!" They crossed the railroad and were soon buying tickets from a sleepy station-master. They alighted at Portsmouth without mishap, and Archie wised his sister that the Congdon house would not do. Then he redeemed his suitcase.

They drove to the hotel, where they in the check room and joined the Governor.

He commended the best service of the inn. The Governor registered elaborately as Reginald Deber Saulsbury and wrote Archie down as Ashton Couly, indicating the residence of both as New York.

At the breakfast table the Governor scanned a local paper and with a chirrup passed it to Archie, pointing to a double column headline, which read, "A Carnival of Burglary in Maine." Archie's eyes fell upon the bizarre photograph of a dead man with which the page was illustrated, and he choked on a fragment of grapefruit.

As he read the inscription: "Dead Thief, Identity Unknown."

"That's poor old Hoky all right," murmured the Governor, uttering a piece of toast reflectively. "As you seem to be entranced with the literary style of our Bailey Harbor correspondent, I shall take the liberty of helping you to a fried egg."

However, Archie's appetite was pretty effectively spoiled by this paragraph.

An odd circumstance, more or less remotely connected with the killing of the burglar in the fashionable colony, still remains to be explained. Officer Terkes shortly before two o'clock, the hour at which the thief was shot in Mr. Cummings' home, saw a man hurrying through Water Street.

He bore the appearance of a gentleman, and the officer did not arrest him, thinking him a yachtsman from one of the boats in the harbor who had been visiting friends ashore. The man walked oddly, putting now and then as though in pain, and was carrying his right hand upon his left shoulder.

This morning drops of blood were found on the boardwalk crossed by the stranger, and it is believed that this was another of the burgher-gang who was wounded in a struggle somewhere in the interior and was seeking the help of his confederate, presumably the man shot in the Cummings house.

As the paper fell from Archie's hand the Governor took it up.

"You seem agitated, Archie! You must learn to conceal your feelings!" He read the paragraph and glanced quickly at Archie.

"Your work, possibly?" murmured the Governor. "Compose yourself, I'm afraid you led to me about the drug store. No!" he held up his hand warningly—"tell me nothing! But if we've got a murder behind us we shall certainly be most circumspect in our movements. You interest me more and more, Archie. I congratulate you on your splendid nerve."

Archie's nerve was nothing he could admire himself, but a second cup of coffee put warmth into his veins and he recovered sufficiently to pay the breakfast check. If it was Congdon he had shot there was still the hope, encouraged by the newspaper, that the wounded man was in no haste to report his injury to the police. But Archie found little comfort in the thought that somewhere in the world there was a man he had shot and perhaps fatally wounded.

He must conceal his anxious concern from the Governor; for more than ever he must rely upon his strange friend for assistance in escaping from the consequence of the duel in the Congdon cottage.
